From Intern Steve

¹³ Then one of the elders addressed me, saying, "Who are these, robed in white, and where have they come from?" ¹⁴ I said to him, "Sir, you are the one who knows." Then he said to me, "These are they who have come out of the great ordeal; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

¹⁵ For this reason they are before the throne of God
and worship him day and night within his temple, and the one who is seated on the throne will shelter them.

¹⁶ They will hunger no more and thirst no more;
the sun will not strike them,
nor any scorching heat,

¹⁷ for the Lamb at the center of the throne will be their shepherd, and he will guide them to springs of the water of life,
and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

Right now, I am working through the book of Revelation with a group of people from Washington and NELC (You are always welcome to join us!). It is important that before studying this often confusing and misunderstood book of the Bible, that we put it in perspective a bit. Many people have used this book throughout history to try to calculate the events and the dates of the end of the world, and as our group is discovering, this was not the purpose of this book. Revelation is a letter written by John of Patmos to 7 churches in the area of Turkey who are falling victim to Roman oppression and being tempted to adopt the ways of the world and empire that surrounds them. John is using apocalyptic language and poetry as satire and condemnation against the Romans. The language is very confusing because it's almost coded so that only he and his churches will understand what he is talking about. He is warning them of the judgements that may come against them if they stray from the Christian faith, and he is reminding them that the oppression they face is part of the struggle that Jesus alluded to when he spoke of the end times in the Gospels.

Revelation is a book of beautiful vivid imagery and poetry, and the central theme is summed up in the verses I chose to begin. The world is not perfect, living in it is not easy, and sometimes the wars and hardships we see make it seem like everything is coming to an end, but throughout all of it, God is faithful to us. We have been given the promise of salvation through the sacrifice of Jesus on the cross, and when we pass on from this world into the next, we will stand before the throne of God and there will be no more pain, tears, or loss. I encourage you to read Revelation through this lens of hope, and if you want to learn more, I have some great resources I can recommend that will open this scripture in new ways.

President Cecil Tenderholt called the meeting to order.

Secretary report was read and motion to approve by Chris and 2nd by Mary.

Treasure's report was read by David Mullet, motion to accept by Craig and 2nd by Chris.

Old Business:

The phone system at Washington was discussed. It was suggested that a sign should be put on the elevator stating that the phone did not work in the elevator. Craig stated that Polar would install the fiber to the church, but it would be installed above ground level until the ground has thawed. The council recommended that we wait until the spring so the fiber could be installed properly. Until that time people are to depend on their cell phones to make calls.

New Business:

Cecil handed out a report from Tom Mikelson which is the Congregational Report for the year ending December 31, 2023. The report shows statistics of the church membership, average weekly attendance, and congregation's financial stewardship, plus other information. Chris stated that Doris Gylten has resigned as the church historian and needs to be filled. Cecil stated that 2032 is the church's 150th Anniversary, and it is important that we have photos and other records for the celebration. It was recommended that we ask during a church service that we announce that the church needs this position filled and look for volunteers. Chris stated that she will be asking a few people that she knows would be good for this position.

Motion to adjourn the meeting given by Chris and 2nd by Mary.
