From Pastor Steve

Leviticus 19:33-34

<sup>33</sup>“When an alien resides with you in your land, you shall not oppress the alien. <sup>34</sup> The alien who resides with you shall be to you as the native-born among you; you shall love the alien as yourself, for you were aliens in the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

I was sitting with a friend one day and he was talking about taking his family on a trip to Winnipeg for the holiday, that seems like a fun time except because he is not from America, he was worried about leaving the country and getting stopped at the border either going or coming back. His immigration lawyer told him it should be fine because he has done all the proper things as far as immigration requirements go, but that there is always a chance that someone might just decide it's a good day to detain him. My friend cancelled the trip because he has several young children and cannot risk any chance that he may be taken away from them for any amount of time. I felt sad that we live in an environment right now where even people who have done all the things they are supposed to do don't feel safe enough to live their lives without fear.

Hospitality and welcome are themes that are woven all throughout our scriptures. It was key to the culture of the ancient Hebrews. The lack of hospitality according to the prophets was the cause of some of the greatest calamities that befell the Hebrew people. Jesus came later and much of his ministry was about welcoming the strangers, the outcasts and preaching to the gentiles (the non-Jews). Scholars think this emphasis on welcoming and including foreigners was because if the exodus from Egypt happened like the story says, then many other slaves went with the Hebrews. The Ancient Hebrews had to learn to live with people from other lands and cultures as part of their group, and when they settled in the land God promised to them, they had to learn to live with people who were already there.

That is why when Moses is laying down the laws of the covenant in Leviticus to the people it is said that the alien among you shall be treated as a native born. The people are also reminded that they were once aliens in a foreign land.

I am not writing this to excuse people from following the immigration policies of the countries they reside in. I am highlighting this piece of scripture because we should always lead with empathy, kindness and care for our fellow human beings. We must remember that our families are not originally from here either. Generations ago, our ancestors were also aliens in this foreign land. Imagine how they felt. Many didn't know English, they had no people to rely on, the customs and culture of this country were vastly different than the places they had come from. None of us would be here if the people who came before us hadn't learned to live together and treated each other well.

I feel for my friends who don't know what to do in this hyper charged political climate when it comes to their immigration status. The path to citizenship for them shouldn't be scary and confusing. It should focus on the fact that these individuals and their families want to be here. They want to contribute to what makes this country great. They have found a better life here, and it is up to us to help them achieve their dreams, not drive them away because they are different. Laws exist to keep order in society. I have no problem with that. Yes, some people are trying to skirt the path that my friends painstakingly walk and that is not fair, but for each and every one of these people we should be treating them with dignity. I know that's hard but that is what grace is.

Loving your neighbor as yourself means showing kindness to even the people we don't want to. Welcoming the stranger is difficult, but that is our call as followers of Christ. Topics like immigration and deportation have the ability to tear communities apart, but as a community centered in God's love, let us have fruitful conversation, see each other as God's children and work to understand each other. We are stronger together and we can accomplish more as one church for the sake of the world.

Amen. Pastor Steve DeKrey
